

February 17, 2017

To The Member Clubs Of The British Car Council:

On February 17, I spent some time with a local Insurance Broker (Robert Dopson, of Hunt & Dopson Group) to discuss the insurance coverage issues that were raised in mid-December 2016.

I have completed a telephone call with our Arthur J. Gallagher Insurance Broker team [Camille Azzolin, Marnie Lee & Campbell Tate].

The current General Commercial Liability Policy and the Directors & Officers Liability Policy DOES COVER IN-MOTION DRIVING EVENTS

My broadcast statement of December 17, 2016 was INCORRECT!

There are some terms and conditions and exclusions to be aware of, but, In-Motion Driving Events are protected provided:

- 1) participants in such events must have their own regular vehicle insurance coverage in place.
- 2) events CANNOT involve speed contests, demolition derbies, driving skills practice, stunting activities, and such things.
- 3) In-Motion events/participants must follow all the normal rules of the road.

For example, the British Car Council Toy Drive is protected – as long as each participant has their own vehicle insurance policy AND there are no reckless contests/skills/practices/activities AND the route is conducted following the typical rules of the road.

Please advise your individual club Executives and members of this update.

If you have any questions or comments about this news, I would happy to receive it.

If you want to speak to me about this, I can provide a telephone number to call me.
